

PRIME 2010

6th Conference on Ph. D. Research in Microelectronics & Electronics
18 – 21 July 2010 Berlin, Germany

Germany's „PRIME“ Event in Microelectronics & Electronics in Berlin!

- 100+ International Papers presented by Ph.D. Students, Keynote Talks and Discussions
- Exhibition, and Professional and Social Meetings
- Coffee breaks and lunchtimes in the exhibition area for intense exhibitor/attendee-communication

Dear exhibitor,

the German PRIME Conference 2010 will present a national and international forum for microwave scientists and engineers. As the sixth event in a series of successful precursors, following Cork Ireland (2009), it will provide a premier opportunity to disseminate and exchange information about latest achievements in the field of microwave theory, technology, circuits and systems.

Here you have the chance to contact highly qualified and motivated young talents, candidates with state-of-the-art know-how: possibly the employees you are requiring.

Papers presented by Ph.D. Students on Topics as

- Analog and Digital Signal Processing
- Analog, Digital, Mixed-Signal and RF IC Design
- MEMS
- Visual Signal Processing
- Computer Aided Design
- Integrated Power ICs
- VLSI and SoC Applications
- Sensor Systems

Venue:

Technische Universität Berlin
Straße des 17. Juni 136
10623 Berlin

Opening Hours Exhibition:

Monday, July 19: 12:00 am – 5:00 pm
Tuesday, July 20: 8:30 am – 5:00 pm

General Chair:

Frank Henkel (IMST), Prof. Dr. Georg Böck (TU Berlin)

sponsored by the German VDE/ITG Society

The German PRIME Conference 2010 will be held at the TU Berlin situated in the western heart of the city, in Charlottenburg, close to the Zoo, Kurfürstendamm or Gedächtniskirche.

We invite you to join the PRIME in Berlin and to meet engineers, researchers and managers to exchange information on current technologies - and what's more to come to know young professionals. Regarding the economic recovery and the demographic change a perfect opportunity to meet your target group.

We would appreciate it if you return the registration form to fax-no. +49 89 857 76 05 till May 17th, 2010.
